

Ed Lane on the Issues

Public Safety

“Public safety is the top priority of local government. All of us deserve safe neighborhoods and a prompt response to our homes, farms and businesses in an emergency.

We need to pay public safety employees the salary they deserve – one that is competitive with surrounding cities and counties. Lexington can afford nothing less.”

Less Taxes

“It’s your money, not the government’s money. We need to eliminate waste, improve productivity, and manage the city’s budget like a business. Fayette is one of the state’s most affluent counties; with better management, new taxes should not be necessary.”

Smaller Government

“Before trying to condemn, take-over, and operate well-run utility companies, the urban county government should improve its management of storm drainage, sanitary sewers, bus transportation, and public safety. Smaller government is better government.”

“It’s time for a new direction on the Urban County Council. I want to serve our community by bringing sound business ideas to local government.”

Prosperity & Education

“Our schools need to provide exceptional opportunities for everyone. If our educational systems thrive, so will our city. An educated workforce is the infrastructure of the new economy.”

Economic Opportunities

“We need to maintain Fayette County’s horse farms and agri-businesses as a vital part of Lexington’s economy.

Local government needs to work as a strategic partner with Commerce Lexington to promote economic development with a strong emphasis on technology, research and agri-business.

New jobs expand the local tax base and provide employment opportunities for our citizens and children.”

Planning

“Our local government must invest and plan for the future – while at the same time – protect our exceptional quality of life.”
